story of the year

Remember when the frosh walked the halls silently?

Remember how close we came?

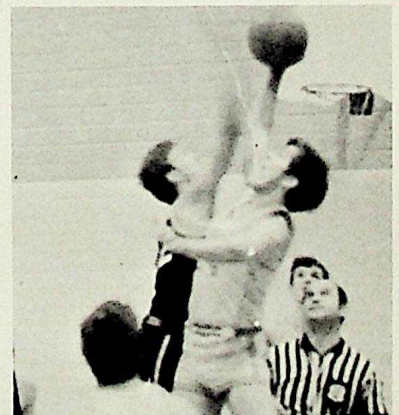

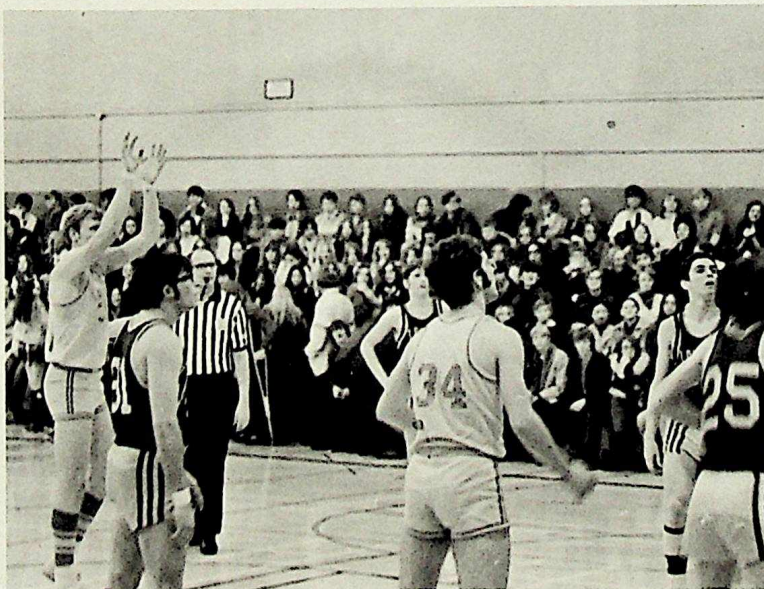

Remember the days that were spent in the library-Or that should have been spent in the library!

Remember watching our bouncing boys on the court?

Remember watching all those bags of blood being carried out of the gym and remember feeling just a little ill?

Remember those Friday afternoons that never seemed to end?

3:02

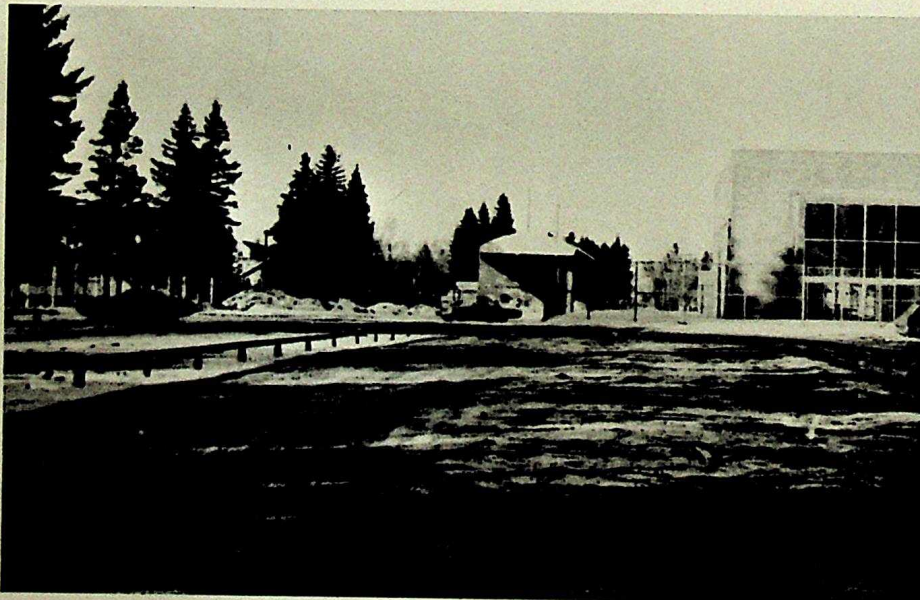

3:04

Remember how fast the parking lot emptied?

3:05

Remember those high-flying brooms and those low-flying snowshoes?

Remember Taming of the Shrew?

Remember those seniors on their knees?

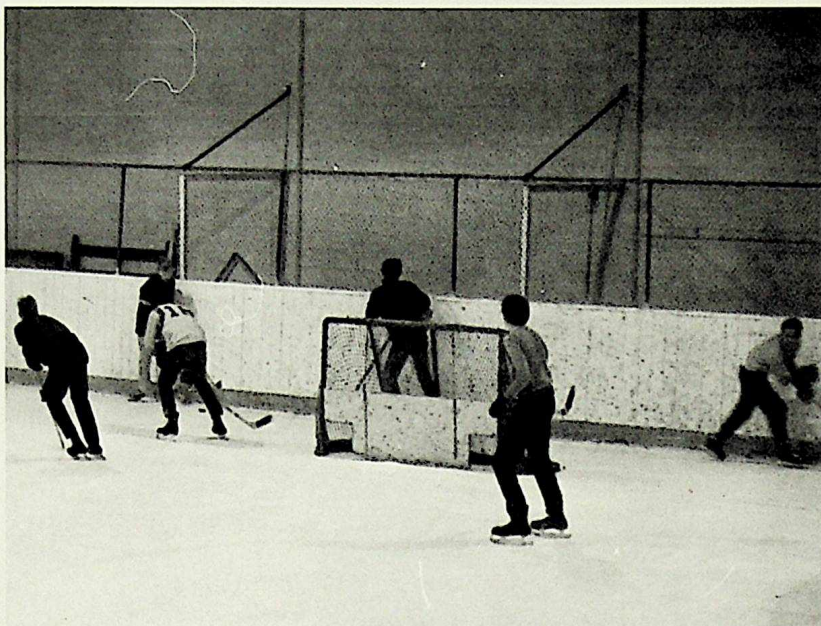

Remember open house?

Remember the Houseleagues?

Remember when the student lounge seemed like it was never going to get finished?

HERMIT

Hermit.
Unshackled by men,
Yet bonded to subsistence...

Hermit.
Seeking self-awareness,
But not knowing self-for he knows not men...

Hermit.
To a higher philosophy
He calls,
To a lower existence
He yields...

Hermit.
He dwells not in his fabled cave-on-the-hill,
Praying as if he were some great Druidian lord...

Hermit
Lies in the quiet boice of strangers,
The reclusion of a next-door neighbour, afraid to speak
lest they discover they have forgotten how...

Hermit in Hiding-
From himself...

Perhaps from a non-existing reality
That strangles his conscience by its secrecy...

Hermit.
From life-

Perhaps in life only to suffer;
A balance for those Who may enjoy living...

Hermit.
An empty cup half-filled with self-pity...
...self-fear...

Hermit,
Hide it...
Hermit,
HIDE IT...
HERMIT!!
HIDE IT!!!!...

Hermit...?

YOUR PET AND YOU

A new craze has swept North America off its feet in the last few years-that of owning exotic pets. Voracious piranhas, elephants, cuddly lions, Komodo lizards, etc., have displaced "Rover" from his place in society, giving their owners the status they rightfully deserve for putting up with their follies. However, the afore-mentioned animals are far from the epitome of one-up-man's-ship, for a new creature has now entered the scene: How would you like to be the first one on your block to own...an Abominable Snowman? These furry little beasts are a delight to own, and the following paragraphs will tell you just how to get one and prepare for it.

Although Abominable Snowmen may be found right here in our Alberta Rocky Mountains, the best specimens inhabit the lofty Himalayan Mountains of Nepal. To catch one, naturally you will have to fly to Nepal, for starters. Upon your arrival, you should hire a minimum of twelve Nepalese to help you on your quest. At the capital of Nepal - Karushne - you may wish to go to "Charley's Outfitting Joint," where the old Englishman will set you up with porters, cooks, and trackers.

Once you get into the mountains, it will prove difficult to capture a Snowman. They reputedly have the strength of ten, and are extremely adept at covering their tracks. Once cornered, the experts will tell you to lure him into a cage by placing inside it a morsel of meat - preferably a hunk of snow leopard.

You may have to wait a few days before the confounded critter will take the bait, but eventually the temptation will prove to be too much for him. Capture by force is frowned upon, as the Snowmen are surprisingly delicate creatures, in spite of their strength.

The return home with your pet is not an easy operation, either, for Abominable Snowman are afraid of heights. Consequently, the return trip will have to be made by boat. Canadian Pacific offers a discount for the enthusiast who wishes to transport a Snowman. However, a concrete/steel cage will have to be constructed on board for the creature, at the owner's expense. It is advisable to have a vet make the trip with you, as Snowmen are very temperamental, and are prone to sea-sickness.

Upon your arrival it is necessary to build another cage, (naturally, you can't let an Abominable Snowman run around loose - what would the neighbors say?). While the Snowman is temporarily placed in a zoo, you immediately start construction in your back yard. A pit is dug, thirty feet square, six feet into the ground - don't worry about not being able to see him, because his head and shoulders will still be in full view. The pit is lined - sides and bottom - by concrete slabs, as Snowmen are noted for their tunneling ability. On ground level steel bars with a nine-inch circumference are recommended to line the pit. Barbed wire should be strung across these bars as a roof, and the over-all fortification of chicken-wire is not a bad idea, either. Your last line of defense should be a one-thousand-volt electric fence.

The last preparation is to have a well-stocked freezer. As previously mentioned, the palate of Abominable Snowman reacts favourably to snow leopard. However, as this has been proven to be a trifle expensive, chicken heads will suffice.

And thus you are ready for your pet, the Abominable Snowman. I have helped you struggle in the Himalayas capturing him, I have helped you sweat the long journey home with him, and I have helped you lovingly prepare his abode. Now what you do with the thing is your own damn business!

the philosopher

my age is not to be determined by the date on my tombstone when i am dead
i am as old as the seasons
i have seen the fires i have made the plans i've left undone and while i travel ageless i beg for samaritan suitcases so that from an aged stained longjohn i shall know who once dwelt there with fleas in my hair and stars in my eyes

i will preach a new tomorrow stolen from a life of yesterdays for you i am half the prophet you feast your eyes on the apparition of my words my hypocrises
while the roots of my deceit lie hidden you have all come to market where i am the jew and i will buy the second-hand souls you bring to drop them in the green paper chapel

i have betrayed thee, socrates i do not look for truth only for those who would believe they have found it.

THE LAST TESTAMENT

"Faith!" cried the preacher.
"Faith?" asked I.
"Aye, faith!" cried the preacher,
"And we both shan't die."

"Faith!" cried the preacher,
But I said "No".
And Lord be praised !
He was first to go.

The mountain side is an undefined line, camouflaged in mists of dry snow.
The moon's light reflects on the snowflakes that fly madly in the disturbed air.

Far off,
In the distance,
One could imagine a grove of trees,
Now only black strokes against a charcoal sky.

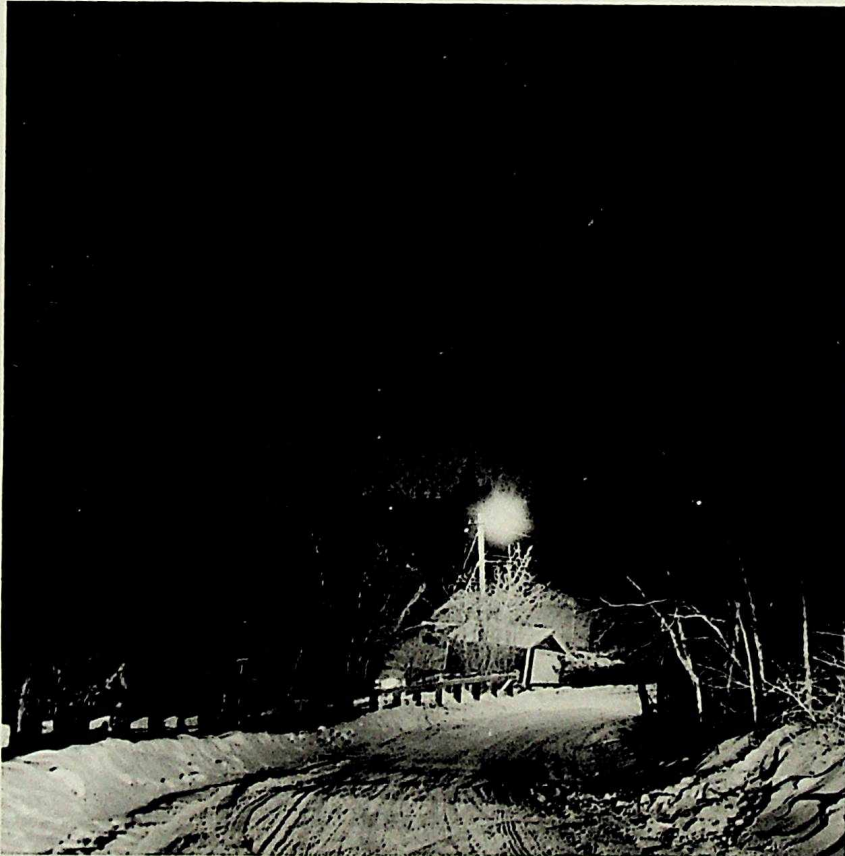

A pair of skis
Flash in the glow of the moonlight.

A body,
Heavily wrapped in clothing appears cascading down the slopes.

In tandem,
three similar figures materialize from the soft spray of snow.

Rapidly and yet casually they switch across the gentle downgrade.
They pass;
Their feet seemingly attached to slivers of light,
Their breath coming in short gasps of air and
Their skis the only sound in the stillness.
A moment later
they are gone.
The mountainside,
once again,
Is camouflaged in mists of dry snow.

IMPREGNABLE LOGIC

The people cowered in the grimy ditches and waited for the end. It came as a blinding flash and an explosive eruption. The earth dweller's minds went bland and gradually the earth became void of any living organisms. Only a desolate, marred planet remained to show that a civilization had once thrived in that lonely universe.

Man evolved slowly when it came to brains. Even if Man could live to eternity, he would never totally utilize his brain capacity. Man allows his emotions to dominate his brain impulses, rather than having strict mental control over his actions. Man will eventually destroy himself because of this lack of self-control. The human race in its greed for dominance and absolute rule has lost its logical reasoning, and has destroyed much of the natural state of the world. Even after creating havoc in the balance of nature, Man still considers himself superior over all other lowly habitants of the repressed world.

Numerable species of animal and plant life have been exterminated due to Man's complete lack of insight. Animals lack any real power to halt Man's expansion, due to their incapability to converse in the human tongue. Due to Man's stubborn insistence that human beings are superior and communicate at a higher level, Man has not seen fit to acquaint himself with the conversation of lower forms of mammals. The animals meanwhile fall to Man's mercy and gradually cease to thrive in their once flourishing homelands. The animals suffer in silence while Man stamps on.

Having finally depleted the Earth's resources and wealth, Man strove on to higher goals. The splitting of the minute atom proved challenging to Man's inquisitive curiosity, and so he plunged right into the solving of the hidden, and perhaps best hidden, secrets of the dynamic atom. Of course, it's commonly known that Man did succeed in conquering the resistant atom, just as Man has, and will conquer everything. The only thing Man will have trouble controlling now is the wild impulse to use the destructive force of the atom.

Man discovered the potent weapon against all the world. The animals are innocent when it comes to the depletion of Earth's resources and wealth. The animals didn't discover the atomic energy. Man with his superior intellectual powers conquered a new goal while releasing the pitfall of the universe. In the end, animal and people alike will be totally wiped from the earth.

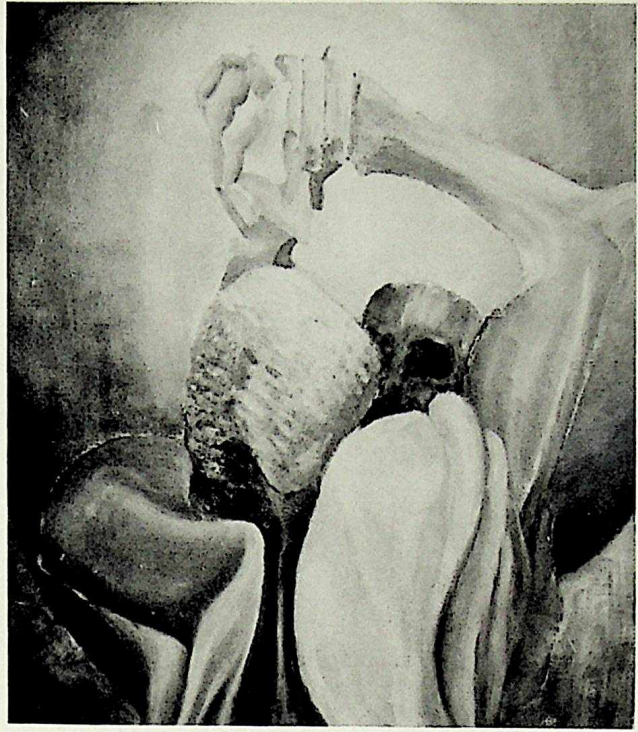

Man will destroy himself, his environment, his fellow creatures, his society and completely ruin the civilization and accomplishments that he strove so hard to gain.

What then was Man placed on the Earth for? What is his purpose? What was Man given such an exceptional brain for? Surely it was not to slowly deteriorate and destroy the world! It couldn't be because Man evolved to destroy the world!

Hope Lives On A Mountain

Hope lives on a mountain.
Pregnant promise
Shining, beckoning, Taunting. . . . .

An alpine gust Bursting lungs cleansing heart caressing nostrils with fickle. . . . .

Bracing belief with arms of air
Sustaining minds on pedestals of gas.

Gashing feet on rocks of unattainable perfection
Cracking bone with spears of doomed shale. . .
Hope is man's most elusive mistress.
She leads him to seek life in rotten char
Light! from candles made of butter,
Love! from pages written by others who have held her who have hoped. . . . .
Why must poets strive to claim her?
They try in hopes. . . . .
    in hopes. . . . .

Hope lives on a mountain. . . . .

MacDonald in memory of Pilot Officer John William Harley, Flying Officer John Whitla Millar and Flight Lieutenant Harold Ransom Sutton. These three young men, who attended Strathcona High School, were killed in World War II.

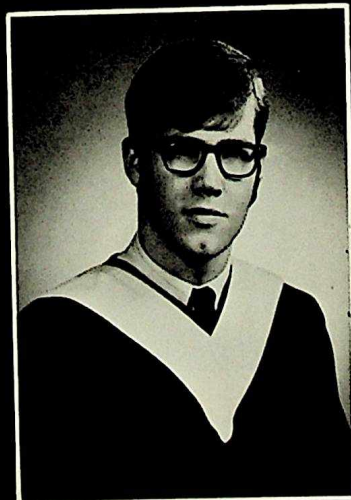

This year the Awards Board has not been able to come to a decision between these two worthy recipients of this trophy.

Dick has been a Room Representative, and has served on the Boys' Athletic Council. He has been a member of the Junior and Senior Football and Basketball Teams. #### PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

Society today faces a greater challenge than ever before and the youth face greater pressure from many sources than any preceding generation. It is self-evident that the future belongs to the young. But your generation bears a special responsibility in this respect because the next three decades will be critical to the future of mankind.

It is encouraging to note that many of our students do have a very keen social conscience and are not taken in by the hypocrisy and double standards so much in evidence today. It is also worth noting that you have the opportunity to be better prepared for the future than any generation before you. This then is not the time to opt out or shrink from the challenge. It is instead the time to begin assuming the burdensome responsibilities that will undoubtedly be yours.

Valedictory

These twelve long years are finally behind us - we have "graduated". But what, for us, does "graduating" really mean?

We, the graduating class of '70, are NOT as the cliché puts it, "on the threshold of a great new life"; we are NOT "stepping into a glorious future"; we are NOT just "starting on the road to adulthood". Ours is a very different age and a very different generation.

Already long before graduation we have been forced to become conscious of and more or less involved in the world problems. We know the threats of nuclear war, now. We know the dangers of population explosion, now. We know what prejudice is, what oppression is, what rioting is, what brutality is, now. We know what the Cold War is, mass hysteria is, what starvation is, now. No, it is not to the future but to the present we must look.

On July first each of us will go our own way. Some will get jobs, some will marry, some will continue their studies, some will roam the world. However, in the midst of all the new experiences, and excitements, every one of us will have to face the greater problems. Today, world problems concern everyone; the threats we face will not wait.

Through our involvement, however, we may begin to find solutions. We may see the formation of a world nation. Perhaps, through us, we may see the development of a Humanistic Age in which social and humanistic ideals will at least catch up with the world's technological knowledge. We will never see a perfect world but a bearable world for everyone IS possible.

But even beyond these world questions, each of us faces even a greater challenge --- to live a full and harmonious life in our problematic and dynamic society. Today, with even the institutions of marriage and the family under attack, each of us will have to find our own answers. Nothing is easy anymore.

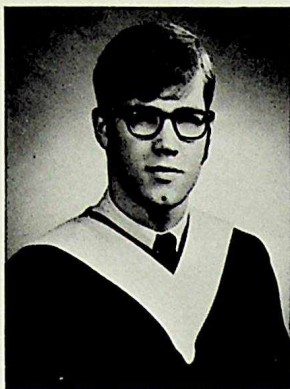

Our lives are complex - and so will our futures be. Nevertheless, we may experience true happiness, peace and harmony. The future is all up to us.

CLASS HISTORY

Nineteen seventy . . . the beginning of a new decade and the end of three important years of our lives . . . three Scona years. With graduation we each begin a new life; we separate and seek our fortunes as individuals. That new life, however, will be backed by a common experience . . . those three years together.

Memories are peculiar to individuals and each senior will look back to this freshman, sophomore and senior years with mixed and discriminating emotions. As frosh we welcomed the activity, the academic atmosphere, the athletics, the people . . . the essence of high school life as it had been related to us. As sophomores we began to control the activities, to seek our academic goals, to become team members. Finally, as seniors we had a voice and a hand in every part of Scona life. Graduation . . . our year, a lime-light year, a year to accept the failures and successes of our activities, the ups and downs of our athletic teams, a year to culminate twelve hard years of schooling. Recollections will be unique. A fellow might remember his night at the "Hen's Hustle" or the the bleacher drills of football practice. Another senior might recall the bicycle race, swim team practice, syncopated symphonies in the music room, Muk-Luk pancakes and sausages, a successful January dance, basketball blisters, the Modelling Club, Youth Hostel, the windy chill of Renfrew Park, basketball on a Friday night, the Young Shakespeare Society-as Scona students our experiences have touched upon these instances. Nineteen seventy has marked the beginning of adventurous, fresh ideas in Scona's administration. A partial "honor system" has evolved, incorporating a greater freedom of movement, speech and action wherein the individual is accountable for his demise or success. We have christened our student lounge, been blessed with a flexible co-operative administration; we have begun classes at 8:15 every morning. Above all, congratulations are in order for every graduand, who having "stuck it out", is ready to begin the new life.

Our advisors: Mr. Johnson, Mr. Nelson, Mr. Oberholtzer for all of their kind assistance. The office secretaries for their patience and tolerance. Our photographers without whom we never would have made it. The yearbook staff and everyone who dropped into 116 at noons to help out.
